Introduction

Blackfinch Group was founded and established by its Chief Executive Officer (CEO) Richard Cook on 12th February 2013. This date is significant as it is the anniversary of the birth of Charles Darwin.

The Group has always maintained an adherence to the writings and philosophies of Darwin, reflected in its values of 'Adapt', 'Evolve' and 'Thrive'. These inform how it designs and provides a range of services and products to Independent Financial Advisers (IFAs) and their clients. It continually adapts and evolves offerings in order that its customers can thrive.

Blackfinch Group is focused on targeting improvement in responsible investment outcomes, through working to one of Darwin's key principles, that species and environments need to adapt in order to survive and thrive.

Through Blackfinch's corporate and investment strategies, we now have adopted various responsible investing processes and policies which will enable us to deliver on our commitment as a signatory to the UN PRI. This is a public demonstration of our pledge to responsible investment, and places Blackfinch at the heart of a global community, seeking to build a more sustainable financial system.

Our responsible investing principles

At Blackfinch, we target growth for long-term success. We have a duty of care to all our stakeholders, whether its tech company founders, financial advisers, retail investors, borrowers, brokers, property developers, renewable energy operators, industry bodies, our own employees or institutional investors. Our actions need to ensure that we all thrive, both now and over the long-term.

We are a signatory to the UN Principles for Responsible Investment (PRI), placing us at the heart of a global community seeking to build a more sustainable financial system.

We are increasingly aligning our policies, processes and communication to the UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) – a universal call to action to tackle the world’s greatest challenges and a shared blueprint for peace and prosperity for people and the planet.

We’re always on the lookout for investments that can create value and capital preservation. This means it’s important for us to consider a multitude of factors when assessing any potential opportunity.

Alongside fundamental financial factors, we have a wide range of considerations we use for initial screening. Our extensive due diligence processes assess factors such as the people involved, health and safety standards, impact on society, risk to the environment, geographic location, strength of governance and more.

Sustainability factors are considered within our extensive due diligence processes by all of our teams. We aim to deliver on our investment objectives responsibly and, where possible, make a positive contribution to the future prospects of the world around us.

Below are some examples of things we may consider:

Environmental

Blackfinch Group and its subsidiary companies are committed to ensuring that the effects of their work on the environment are positive. Internally, micro-environmental considerations such as integrating electric company cars into the Group. This is alongside work at macro level: investment in clean energy generation, and technology that reduces the level of harmful emissions into the earth's atmosphere.

Social

Blackfinch Group has an inclusive working culture and is highly supportive of its staff, working to help them thrive over the long term. The team stands at over 140 employees at time of publication. Blackfinch has a strong focus on the health, safety and well-being of its people. At the practical level, all staff are trained in health and safety. They are also regularly reminded of their responsibilities when interacting with their colleagues. In building its team, Blackfinch takes a meritocratic approach, recruiting and developing staff based on their abilities. It then continues supporting all staff to help them reach their full potential. The training and development of staff is core to how the Group works, documented in its Vision statement. As appropriate to their role, select staff are undertaking sustainability studies and related qualifications. These include a range of qualifications, from the PRI ESG Foundation Course to the CFA ESG qualification. Blackfinch Group works to support companies which have a positive social impact. For example, within the Group's subsidiary Blackfinch Ventures, as mentioned previously, demonstrable positive outcomes are seen from the work of investee firms. These range from a digital platform to track children's education to a technology that protects lone or home workers.

Governance

Blackfinch Group has a comprehensive approach to corporate governance, which also benefits from rigorous oversight. Any entity or investment fund in which it intends to invest is put through a rigorous due diligence process. This is undertaken at both corporate and individual levels. Governance within the Group is monitored by its in-house legal and compliance teams. It also has nonexecutive independent board and committee members. Blackfinch Group is a signatory to the Principles of Responsible Investment (PRI). Finally, all its accounts and related processes are regularly audited by an external accountancy firm.
